

TEXAS TOWN FIRE SWEEP THREE DEAD

ARIS, TEXAS, SUFFERS ESTIMATED LOSS OF FROM EIGHT TO TEN MILLION TODAY.

STORM OF WIDE AREA

Fire Causes Damage of a Million and a Half at Oklahoma Oil Field.—Fire at Nashville, Tenn.

Paris, Texas, March 22.—A conservative estimate of the number of homes made homeless by last night's fire in the business district here was 500, made early today by Mayor McCusker. Although the city is without food there was no reported suffering, and a good harvest of wheat was taken by a majority of the citizens.

The property loss from the most active sources today at from two to three million dollars.

Death Rumors Unconfirmed.

Rumors, vague but persistent, were made today that many persons had lost their lives. Confirmation, however, was lacking, and while considering the property damage it seems unnecessary that there should have been no deaths. The fire, which started in the morning, was taken by a majority of the citizens.

Thousands of homeless men, women and children were being cared for as best possible today at private residences, railway stations and the few remaining public buildings. The question of making definite arrangements to care for the unfortunate was expected to be taken up by city authorities early in the morning. Food supplies will be the most serious problem, every hotel, restaurant and grocery in this city having been destroyed.

The wind, which was blowing a gale when the fire started, and which had abated considerably shortly after night, shifted at daylight and the fire slowly traveling in a southerly direction, spreading the flames through out the southern residence district, but in a freakish manner jumping blocks in its progress. Fire fighting apparatus from Dallas, Greenville and other nearby cities was assisting local department in bringing the flames under complete control, which was expected soon after dawn.

The first known casualty in last night's fire became known here at 10 o'clock today when the body of John Strick, negro, was found in the ruins of his home.

Mrs. W. J. Bailey, aged about fifty, died from heart failure, caused by excitement. Mrs. A. C. Paul, an aged woman whose house was burned, is reported to be in a critical condition.

A statement issued late today by the mayor places damage in last night's fire at between eight and ten million dollars. The known dead are three.

Oil Fields Fire Swept.

Tulsa, Okla., March 22.—Damage estimated at over one million dollars has been caused in the fire swept district of the Cushing oil fields. It was believed here today, but no definite details of loss are obtainable, because all wires leading to the district are down. The fire, which started last night, was burning at noon today but was diminishing in intensity, due to a change in the wind.

Fire at Nashville, Tenn. Nashville, Tenn., March 22.—A fire which started in a small dwelling near the corner of Sixth and Main streets this afternoon, driven by a high wind, is sweeping southeast through Nashville, burning in two blocks are on fire.

Spray, N. C., Burning. Greensboro, N. C., March 22.—Spray, N. C., north of here, was burning this afternoon. Practically all structures in the business district were reported destroyed, and flames were spreading. Spray has 1000 population and ten of the largest cotton and woolen mills in the state.

PRIZE CATTLE BURN IN LIGHTNING FIRE

Fifty Thousand Dollar Herd at Freeport Lost When Lightning Sets Fire to the Barn.

Freeport, March 22.—Sixty head of prize Holstein cattle, valued at $50,000, were burned to death here today when the barn in which they were housed was struck by lightning during the storm last night. They were owned by Fred Karlen.

MRS. ELLEN G. McREYNOLDS DIES AT HOME IN KENTUCKY

Albion, Ky., March 22.—Mrs. Ellen G. McReynolds, 70, died at her home here today. Justice McReynolds was at her bedside.

ONE GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK BY ENEMY SHIPS OF ENEMY, SAYS SAILOR.

Austrian, March 22.—"One who has contributed to the Berlin press an article describing the achievements of the German submarines in the first year of the war, has succeeded in one incident to illustrate the magnitude of these achievements."

One single U-boat has accomplished the record feat of sinking no fewer than 69 enemy merchant ships, displacing a total of 227,000 tons.

Germany was especially favored by war, succeeded in sinking 25 enemy ships and a freighter of 74,204 tons in a single day, the largest single success in the course of several months.

START ON CAMPAIGN FOR FACTORY FUNDS

COMMERCIAL CLUB COMMITTEES APPOINTED TO RAISE $12,000 NEEDED TO LOCATE FACTORY.

CONCERN IS INDORSED

Inquiries in Towns Where Gossard Company Has Branch Firms Bring Most Favorable Response.

Five committees of the Janesville Commercial club will begin soliciting funds on Thursday to secure $12,000, the amount necessary to locate a branch factory of the H. W. Gossard company in this city. The campaign is being organized with the view of raising the money quickly. It is believed that the efforts of the committee will meet with ready response.

A preliminary meeting of the solicitors will be held tomorrow noon at the Grand Hotel, at which time the plans will be outlined and each committee will be supplied with lists of firms and business men whom they are to call upon. Following are the men who compose the committees:

George W. Knapp, chairman; M. O. Mount and F. H. Jackson.

F. P. Crook, chairman; T. E. Welsh, J. E. Kennedy, J. Francis and T. O. Howe.

M. W. Connors, chairman; H. A. Moerer, Assen Rehberg, Louis Levy, D. J. Luby, Eugene Craft and Albert Huebel.

W. H. Winkler, chairman; J. E. Lane, Edw. Mierpohl, Orville Morse and J. P. Cullen.

W. H. Dougherty, chairman; J. S. Fife and William McVicar.

In response to inquiries of the Commercial club in cities where the Gossard company has branch factories, present, telegrams of the highest recommendation were received. Messages were received from Belvidere and Dixon, Ill., and Elkhart, Ind., and are considered to indicate the strength of the financial status of the concern.

One of Wright, president of the Second National Bank of Belvidere, writes as follows:

"All experience of bank and of town with Gossard company has been disheartening. Since then it has grown from a small concern to present magnitude. Believe they have employed operatives more hours during the last year than any concern in town. Growth of the company has been limited to ability to employ help."

The Dixon, Ill., Chamber of Commerce sends the following dispatch:

"H. W. Gossard and his associates here some years ago and have fulfilled all obligations to the city. It owns and operates its plant, first making shoes, and now water-proof shoes. Have found them energetic, high grade men and believe that any business undertaken by them will succeed and prove valuable addition to your community."

J. W. Fieldhouse, president of St. Joseph Valley National Bank at Elkhart, Ind., has the following to offer:

"The Gossard company has done business with our bank the past ten years. They are honorable and responsible people. Their factory at this place is a busy one. They pay good wages and work between 40 and 45 hours a week. Many of their girls make $13 a week."

HOLLAND PERTURBED AT TUBANTIA LOSS

Dutch Government Still Suspicious That German Submarine Was Responsible for Ship's Sinking.

The Hague, March 22.—The Tubantia case is causing serious perplexity to the Dutch government. The Associated Press is informed authoritatively that no further government action will be taken until the result of an examination by divers is known.

Announcement of the Rotterdam that small pieces of brass were found in the Tubantia's boats, and this it is believed will help clear up the mystery.

Although the German submarines in the North sea may be in touch by wireless with Zebrugge and Wilhelmshaven, the Dutch newspapers report to be of the denial of Germany of responsibility for the loss of any genuine investigation. They point out that after previous submarine attacks it took two weeks for German admiral to establish the fact.

PRESIDENT RESENTS GERARD PEACE STORY

Wilson Reported at the White House as Resentful for Publication on Peace Move.

Washington, March 22.—President Wilson was reported at the White House today as being resentful for publication of stories that Ambassador Gerard has reported Germany was about to make a move for peace. The published reports were characterized as being based on inferences.

SHERMAN PRESENTS CALL FOR 50,000

Resolution Introduced Calling for Fifty Thousand Dollars for Elmy.

Washington, March 22.—Senator Sherman of Illinois today introduced the resolution to authorize and direct the president to at once order for 50,000 for service in Mexico. Under the resolution the bill will be passed.

AUSTRIAN SAVINGS BANKS WILL TAKE GOLD JEWELRY.

Vienna, March 22.—With the idea of increasing the national supply of gold, Austrian savings banks are preparing to open special accounts with persons depositing gold ornaments and jewelry, on which the rate of interest will be one per cent higher than the ordinary rate. The bank will hand over the gold objects to a state appraiser, who will ascertain the quantity of gold contained and inform the bank of its value. The bank will then issue a receipt to the owner with the appraised amount.

GET REPORTS BY WIRELESS FROM FRONT

CONNECTIONS RE-ESTABLISHED WITH GEN. PERSHING'S EXPEDITIONARY FORCE.

ARMY BUILDS HIGHWAY

Villa Trail Into Mexican Desert Is Transformed Into Fine Highway for U. S. Supply Trains.

By Associated Press.

Columbus, March 22.—Wireless communication with the advanced base of American expeditionary force at Casas Grandes was reported today. Several messages in code were received.

Villa Trail Transformed. On the line of march of the American army, Mexico, by courier to Columbus, March 22.—The trail along which Francisco Villa retreated from Columbus less than two weeks ago, is a broad, well worn highway, with some points for miles, as it winds over and around the hills in northern Chihuahua. The road is an evidence of the efficiency of the American army, which in a week's time has converted the trail across a semi-desert, into a military road, the main artery for supplies to Pershing's column.

Locate Missing Aviator. San Antonio, March 22.—One of the aviators missing from squadron that went to join General Pershing's column descended somewhere south of El Paso, Texas. It was learned at General Pershing's headquarters today. His name was not given.

Battleship at Tampico. Galveston, March 22.—The United States battleship Kentucky arrived here yesterday morning and put under field orders late yesterday afternoon, sailed before it was possible to make deliveries of coal and supplies to the ship. There are persistent rumors that the battleship was sent to Tampico, but no confirmation of these rumors was had today.

Chicago Cavalry Leaves. Chicago, March 22.—The first squadron of the cavalry, left Fort Sheridan today for the Mexican border in two trains.

GRAVE DIGGER IN A PITIFUL SPEECH BEFORE CONGRESS

Attired in Working Clothes Goes Before House and Speaks in Favor of Minimum Wage Law.

By Associated Press.

Washington, March 22.—A grave digger from Arlington National cemetery, told the house committee considering the Nolan war veterans' employment bill today, how he managed to keep his little family together on $40 a month, and fell into tears in the midst of his recital. The bill proposes a minimum wage of $3 a day for federal workers.

The man who represented the grave diggers in cemetery, came from the front lines of the war. He started his story boldly enough but as he progressed telling how it was impossible for him to buy meat for his wife and two children, tears came to his eyes, his chin quivered and finally words became inaudible.

"Out of my $40 a month," he said, "I pay $8 for rent, $3 for car fare and the other $29 I live on. I have no other expenses. We eat beans and hominy principally. We never have meat. Even beans and hominy are going up. I remember when beans were eight cents a bushel, now they are twenty."

"Those graves are hard to dig. I had five to dig today, and look how it is raining. Many a time I have been up to my knees in water and mud, digging graves, when the rain was pouring down on my head. I have seen the graves of my dear wife and children. When I ask for a raise, they say, 'Well, you know what you can do if you don't like it.' God knows how we would have lived if my wife did not take in some sewing."

Other witnesses testified that as result of small wages, installment houses thrive on the workmen.

This offer previously was made to the senate committee and ignored. In the face of threats after the senate committee's refusal to entertain the proposed bill, the house committee would raise the price if the bill passed, the company's renewed offer caused much surprise. The proposal was submitted by President Graves of the Bethlehem Steel company, who repeated his statement that if the government would make a plant private works worth more than $20,000,000 would be made useless.

Bethlehem Company's Proposal. When the house naval committee today received the Tillman bill for a government armor plant, which passed the senate yesterday, it also received a proposal from the Bethlehem Steel company to cut the price of armor from present price of $425 to $365.

DATES ARE FIXED FOR BARBERS' EXAMINATIONS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., March 22.—The time and places for state examinations for master barbers' licenses have been selected by the state board of health. They will be held April 3, 4 and 5 at Eau Claire. These are the last examinations to be held before Sept. 1, and all journeymen whose licenses expire before that time are expected to file applications for the coming tests. The journeymen's license fee is now $5.

During February 52 shops were inspected in the state, 83 of which were in Milwaukee. Many shops were re-inspected and the degree of improvement noted. These changes include installing of washbowls, hot and cold running water, larger linen supply and cleanliness. The reports invariably testify to the increased amount of business done by shops where neatness and cleanliness are the order of the day.

The inspectors find that numerous owners or managers of shops fail to ascertain whether new employees hold the necessary licenses, and fail to post in a conspicuous place. Such failure carries a penalty under the law.

STORM DAMAGE LOSSES TO REACH BIG TOTAL

SPRING'S VISIT ABBREVIATED BY SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED WRATH OF ANGRY STORM KING.

LITTLE DAMAGE HERE

But Rain, Sleet, Wind and Deep Snow Cause Much Inconvenience.—Phone Company Lines Suffer.

Janesville's first spring shower developed into one of the most disastrous downpours which has visited the city and vicinity, and in fact a wide area of Wisconsin and northern Illinois in a decade.

Miss Spring, the well known Miss Joyful Spring, officially arrived here with her retinue yesterday. Today she is covering before the terrific onslaught and wrath of the storm king which has caused hundreds of dollars of property loss through lightning, wind, rain and snow.

Starting shortly before nine o'clock last night with a quick change of temperature and a light rain the storm grew in density and fury until middle morning today.

Rail lines entering the city were handicapped with the storm. Train schedules were disrupted to a certain extent, but as a whole it was not found necessary to suspend the trains.

LA FOLLETTE GETS DAKOTA DELEGATION

North Dakota Presidential Preference Primary Goes for Senior Wisconsin Senator.

By Associated Press.

Fargo, N. D., March 22.—Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin apparently defeated Henry D. Estabrook of New York for choice in yesterday's presidential preference primary, but by a majority less than anticipated by his supporters.

From returns from the eastern end of the state, reports favored La Follette, and it is anticipated the grand total will show him in the lead by a considerable margin. Estabrook is showing considerable strength in the southwestern district, and the counts show that the race in that section will be close. The returns are being slowly received, due to severe snowstorms which are said to have caused an entire abandonment of the election. In many sections only a small fraction of the precincts, mostly cities, have been reached. Both La Follette and Estabrook forces are today claiming victories.

For president the socialists endorsed Arthur Laguerre of Minot without opposition. Gunder Olson has been named national committeeman of the republicans.

IS JANESVILLE TO HAVE CELEBRATION ON FOURTH OF JULY?

Retail Liquor Dealers' Association Offer One Thousand Dollar Guarantee if Day is Celebrated.

Is Janesville to have a Fourth of July celebration this year or not?

At a meeting of the Janesville Retail Liquor Dealers' association, held on Tuesday, the question was brought up for discussion and the sum of one thousand dollars was pledged if such a plan is carried out.

More than that, a special committee of five was named by the association to take the matter up with the Janesville Commercial club at once to further the plan. This committee consists of William Lawyer, chairman; Maurice Dalton, J. E. Gokey, Herman Burgess and John Conley.

It is understood that the matter will be taken up with the promotion committee of the Commercial club, W. H. Dougherty, chairman, and brought up for consideration at the next meeting of the directors.

Two years ago, July 4th, a joint committee of the Commercial club and the Retail Liquor Dealers' association staged one of the most successful celebrations in the history of the city.

At this celebration thousands of visitors from all parts of the country were present and it has been roughly estimated that fully fifty thousand persons witnessed the Nonesuch Bros. burlesque circus parade.

For two decades it has been the custom for Janesville to celebrate the Fourth every second year, but the fame of the burlesque circus known as the Nonesuch Bros. has spread from coast to coast.

Just what action the Commercial club will take is not certain yet, but it is known that the matter has been up for discussion among its members for some time past and the promotion committee had plans under consideration.

Brodhead, March 22.—By invitation from Miss Nelson, teacher of domestic science in our high school, and her cooking class, the board of education met on Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. B. Sprague and Principal and Mrs. Jahr, were given a practical exemplification of the work which is being done in this line on Monday evening, when they were at the school.

A fine cooked, bountiful five-thirty dinner.

The Round Table Study club had an interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Le Roy Stahler.

A welcome thunder storm visited this section Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Fried Ties received word Tuesday of the death of her brother, William Mooney, at New York, of pneumonia.

Mr. Mooney was formerly a resident of Brodhead, being at one time in the employ of George Monell.

Miss Made Johnson visited in Janesville on Tuesday.

Mrs. W. R. Day and daughter, Mrs. George Ross and son, Russell Day, were visitors in Monroe Tuesday.

Miss Gustie Johnson is home from Milwaukee for a few days' visit.

Miss May Roderick arrived home Tuesday from Lawrence college at Appleton for a short visit.

Mrs. Albert Gilbert of Madison, visited on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert.

TWO SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS PRESENT PLEASING PROGRAM BEFORE SCHOOL.

Mailla Powers and Jessica George, both seniors at the high school presented a very pleasing and interesting program before the assembly room at the school this morning during the opening exercises. Miss Powers gave two vocal solos and Miss George gave a piano solo and a reading. All the numbers were enjoyed very much by the students and faculty.

COFFEE FACTS

Read what the 19th edition United States Dispensary (page 253), the guiding authority for chemists, druggists and physicians, says about the drug, caffeine, of which there is about 2 1/2 grains in the average cup of coffee:

"Given in large dose to the lower animals, caffeine produces hurried respiration, restlessness, slightly lowered, followed by a markedly elevated temperature, tetanic and clonic convulsions, progressive paralysis, and finally death from paralytic arrest of respiration."

Although man is stronger and more resistant, it is a well-known scientific fact that caffeine, in coffee, is a frequent cause of headache, nervousness, biliousness, heart flutter and many other ills.

Not at one large dose, but little doses repeated regularly does this subtle, habit-forming drug get in its work, and sooner or later, many coffee drinkers suffer.

Before that time comes, suppose you make a personal test—quit coffee ten days and use

POSTUM

Made of wheat and a little wholesome molasses, this famous pure food-drink has a rich, snappy flavour much like that of mild, high-grade coffee, and it contains no drug or other harmful element.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is the original Postum reduced to soluble form; a level teaspoonful in a cup with boiling water makes a perfect cup instantly. Both forms are equally delicious, and the cost per cup is about the same.

The change from coffee to Postum is pleasant as well as highly beneficial, and with the better health that comes with freedom from caffeine, the drug in coffee, you'll know

CRUSHER OPERATED AT A LOWER PRICE

Report Prepared on the Cost of Operating the City Stone Crusher Last Year.

A report showing the total cost of operating the city stone crusher during the season of 1915 was made out this morning by City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund, which shows that the cost of obtaining crushed stone and rubble decreased over the cost of any previous year, or at least within recent date. Last summer there was 6,407 1/2 yards of crushed stone, turned out by the crusher and the total cost of operation was $4,855.57, making it a cost of 75 cents per yard. This year, the crusher for 1914 was 86 cents, and in past years the cost often ran above the dollar mark, the average being between ninety cents and a dollar.

The city is planning not to open the crusher this year to eliminate the expense. It would be almost necessary to open up a new pit, for it is said that the crusher is now almost exhausted. If there was a demand for as much crushed stone as last year the crusher building might be moved down into the pit to save the cost of a long haul. This would incur a large expense and also expensive repairs to the machinery would be necessary.

The city council adjourned their meeting scheduled for Tuesday afternoon on Friday. The snow storm placed a handicap on the street department, delaying work that was being started. A general clean-up of the streets was started this week, and if the weather continues the work will have to be done over again.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, March 22.—The Wisconsin spiritualists' convention is being held in Milwaukee for three days.

Dr. S. B. Higgins of the Morris Pratt Institute of this city is president of the association. One of the features of the daily sessions is psychic readings by William E. Hammond, a graduate of the Pratt Institute in this city.

Mrs. C. W. Trutt returned Tuesday from Rochester, Minn., where she recently had an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Risdon of Milwaukee were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holden the first of the week.

Miss Adelaide Flack of the normal spent Sunday with her parents in Delavan.

Miss Mayma Kyle visited Mrs. W. F. Bowers in Milton Junction Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Halverson of Milton Junction were Sunday visitors at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Halverson.

William Cox of Edgerton visited at the home of Frank Wilcox Tuesday.

Marc Webb of Evansville visited with friends here Sunday.

Wells Landfare left Wednesday for Riceville, Iowa, for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Meusel and son of Milwaukee spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fose.

Mrs. Ida Tipple and Malcolm are at Waupun visiting relatives.

The worst snow and sleet storm of the winter visited the city last evening, causing much trouble to telephone and electric wires.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Kent.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Kent, who passed away in St. Paul, Minn., on Tuesday, March 21st. She was the widow of William E. Kent, and she leaves two sons, the Reverend Lawrence Kent and Frank Kent. Mrs. Kent's grandfather was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and her father was an admiral in the United States navy. The remains are expected to arrive in Janesville at 8:20 on Thursday morning. Services will be held at the chapel in Oak Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Kent were among the early settlers in Janesville.

BRISK HOG MARKET AT SHADE ADVANCE

Quotations Range Five Cents Higher With Bulk Selling at $9.55 to $9.70.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, March 22.—Hogs were in brisk demand this morning with prices five cents above yesterday's close. Bulk of sales ranged from $9.55 to $9.70. There was a good run estimated at 32,000 head. Cattle were higher for best grades, prime native steers selling up to $9.50. Sheep trade continued steady with a run of 10,000. Quotations follow:

Cattle—Receipts 12,000; market steady to unevenly higher; native beef steers $7.50@9.50; western steers $7.50@8.50; stockers and feeders $8.00@9.50; cows and heifers $5.50@8.70; calves $8.00@10.50.

Hogs—Receipts 32,000; market higher than yesterday's average; light $9.15@9.70; mixed $9.35@9.75; heavy $9.20@9.75; rough $9.30@9.45; pigs $7.50@8.80; bulk of sales $9.55@9.70.

Sheep—Receipts 10,000; market steady; $8.40@9.15; lambs, native $9.75@11.70.

Butter—Creameries 31@36 1/2. Eggs—Unchanged; 19.44 cases. Potatoes—Unchanged.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor:

In your issue of last evening the impression is easily gained that I willfully violated the traffic ordinance.

In fact, and in turning as I did was to avoid accident. On Monday night the 13th inst. I was driving east on Milwaukee street on my way to Odd Fellows' hall, which is in the corner of the block. When I reached the intersection of Main, the three corners were apparently blocked.

EVEN POLITICIANS DON'T KNOW WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN IN OKLAHOMA.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Oklahoma City, Okla., March 22.—
Even the most astute politicians in the state admitted that the result of the Republican state convention, which opened here today, could best be expressed at present by a big question mark. There was no "native element" in evidence, and what sentiment previously had been expressed was about equally divided between Roosevelt, Hughes and Borah.
An unadvised delegation appeared to be the most probable outcome.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

(Allen B. West)
Question—Will you please tell me just how to proceed?
Answer—Since your ground was in tobacco last year it is probable that it is comparatively free from weeds and consequently should be in good shape for alfalfa. The very first thing to be determined is whether or not the soil is sour. This can only be determined by test, though some farmers think they know that their soil is not sour because it has raised good crops. As sweet soil is not a necessity for alfalfa, corn, oats, barley and grasses, and some of the garden vegetables, one cannot judge from these crops whether or not the soil is acid. Making the test is a very simple matter, requiring only a piece of blue litmus paper, which may be produced at any drug store, a sample of moist soil and a few moments' time. The method is as follows: Procure a good double hand-ful of the soil to be tested and insert it in the strip of litmus paper, pressing the dirt firmly against the paper so that it will come in close contact with it. The soil should be moist enough to hold its shape when squeezed in the hand. It should be left in contact with the paper for at least four minutes, then the paper should be withdrawn and examined. If the color of the paper remains the same the soil is not acid. If pink or red shows the soil is acid, and should have lime to correct it before trying to grow alfalfa, for the crop positively will not be a success on acid soil. A test which will show the amount of acidity in the soil has recently been devised and if the in-quester will send a sample of soil to the Janesville high school the test made there, in such a way as to show how much lime is needed per acre. It would be well to make the test at once so that the lime, if needed, may be applied before the rush of spring work begins. For most acid soils an application of from two to four tons per acre should be applied to the surface of plowed soil and then harrowed in. If the land in question was not plowed last fall it should not be limed until after plowing.

There are two methods of seeding alfalfa, one with a nurse crop, the other without.
In 1913 the members of the Wisconsin Alfalfa Order made 223 tests in different parts of the state to determine the best method of seeding. The result showed twice as many out-comes with the nurse crop as without, so on the whole the writer in question the writer would advise seeding without the nurse crop and seeding in June, unless the land is cultivated in that case it should be seeded in the fall.

After plowing, which should be done early if not done last fall, the ground should be disced and harrowed to warm the soil and cause an early sprouting of the weeds. This should be continued once a week until the first or middle of June. It kills the weed growth, conserves moisture and makes an ideal seed bed. This may seem a great deal of work but it must be remembered that alfalfa once started successfully is in for from three to five years, giving a larger profit per acre than almost any other farm crop, so thorough preparation pays well. The next step is inoculation, which is necessary unless one is sure that alfalfa will grow in the soil without it. If an adjoining field is growing sweet clover or alfalfa successfully it is probable that it will not be necessary to inoculate. However, in that case inoculation by means of soil from these nearby fields is so very easy that it would seem best in the light of experiments of the Alfalfa Order to have it done, for they report three times as many failures where inoculation was not practiced.

All that is necessary is to scatter at the rate of one ton to the acre soil from an old alfalfa field or land upon which sweet clover was grown. In case the inquiry cannot get soil he may not doubt be supplied free with liquid bacteria culture from the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. The writer has hints for the applica-tion for such culture for the use of any farmer who desires them. Full instructions for use will accompany the cultures.

The alfalfa seed should be sown at the rate of twenty pounds to the acre and can be applied with a hand seeder or grass seed attachment. The use of a straight tooth harrow run over the ground to cover the seed lightly is recommended. If the soil is light and sandy the seed should be covered to a depth of one to two inches. On clay soil the seed should be sown less than one inch in depth so the tiny seedling may push through to the surface.

The seedbed should be firmed with a roller after seeding, but this rolling should be followed by using a fine-toothed harrow so the surface is loose enough to prevent evaporation. Detailed directions for "Alfalfa Growing in Wisconsin" are given in Bulletin No. 250 of the Wisconsin Experiment Station. Bulletin No. 249 gives the description of the new lead sulfide acetate paper test for acidity which is simple and can be made by any farmer.

How may alfalfa be sown with a nurse crop?
Answer—Please read the above which gives you see the results of experiments in seeding alfalfa both with and without nurse crop, the weight of which are in favor of seeding without.
Barley is better than oats for a nurse crop from the fact that it uses less water and so doesn't dry out the soil. The barley should be sown at one half the usual rate. Seeding nurse crops too thickly crowds out the alfalfa, weakening and thinning the stand, so that a patchy field or an entire failure results. Twenty pounds of alfalfa seed to the acre is required when it is sown with a nurse crop. The time of seeding should be governed by the best time for the grain. The seeding can be done with an operation of a drill or seeder with grass seed attachment is used. It is preferable to let the alfalfa seed scatter broadcast and then run a slant-tooth harrow over the ground after seeding.

Alfalfa requires a firm seed bed. Only the surface should be in loose condition. On the plow and roller should be used to firm the seed bed. It also aids the rapid and uniform germination of the seed by getting it in close contact with the soil. The seed should be covered with a light, firm, moist soil. If the soil is very dry it is best to cut the seed early, giving the alfalfa a better opportunity to grow.

JAPAN ORDERS MACHINERY FOR COTTON SPINNING IN ENGLAND FOR FIVE MILLS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
London, March 22.—A Lancashire firm of textile machinery manufacturers has received orders from Japan for cotton-spinning machinery sufficient to equip five new mills with a total of about 250,000 spindles.
In the past cotton mills in Japan have been ordered night and day, but from the beginning of next July a new law will forbid further night work. The new mills are therefore necessary to keep up the present rate of production.

And the Worst Is Yet To Come

"This is why I take the place!"

Once let a woman enjoy a Winter's experience with the ample, genial, cleanly flow of warmth from radiator heating and never again can you change her from the decision—not to try keeping house without this greatest of home comforts. If you have not experienced our way of heating, ask any woman who has, or ask any real-estate man whether property does not sell or rent quicker and at big-paying advance when building is outfitted with

"The surest, biggest comfort in housekeeping is radiator heating"

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

Why? Because a million users know that this outfit is the one feature which invariably gives greatest satisfaction, and soon repays its original cost in the economies its use brings about—a fine investment, not an expense. Pays far higher returns than 6% bonds. No other building feature produces such permanent returns.

A No. 4-22-W IDEAL Boiler and 422 ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $250, used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

Greatest comfort at lowest price

Every architect and real-estate man knows that IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators are the best heating outfits that money can buy, yet the great volume of sales makes their cost the lowest. Then, most important, IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators are fully guaranteed, backed by our world-wide business and reputation.

Don't think you have to build a new house—the outfit is put in without tearing up. Easily put in old or new stores, schools, churches, farm-houses, banks, theatres, etc. You will need our book of illustrations from which to make selection. Sent free. Puts you under no obligations to buy. Phone or write us to-day.

Built-in, genuine Vacuum Cleaner—iron suction pipe runs to each floor. Price, $150

We also make the ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, connected by iron suction pipe to various floors of houses, flats, schools, churches, hotels, etc. Through a light-weight hose ALL the dirt, cobwebs, lint, threads, moths, etc., are drawn with lightning rapidity down the iron piping into big, sealed dust-bucket in cellar. No dragging around a clumsy, inefficient portable cleaner—instead you have a practical outfit that is part of the building—like radiator heating. Ask for catalog—it does not obligate you to buy.

CLINTON

Clinton, March 21.—C. J. Smith, wife and children spent Sunday with relatives in Evansville.
Robert Hartshorn, who died in the Beloit hospital last week, was buried in the Clinton cemetery Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m., after services at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. W. Latta, just east of town. Mr. Hartshorn lived in Clinton several years ago. He was the father of Mrs. A. W. Latta, Mrs. Fred Latta of Clinton, and Col. Hartshorn of Janesville. He had been in very poor health for a long time and the end was not unexpected.

The Clinton Invincibles went to Beloit Saturday to play basketball with a Beloit team.
Miss Iva Reid of Rockford, and Miss Edith Grosz of Argyle, Ill., spent Sunday with their former Beloit college classmate, Miss Estelle Cooper.
John Westphal of Sharon, spent Saturday in Clinton.
Morrison Woodard of Virginia, arrived here Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. A. Woodard, and sister, Mrs. J. I. Green.

Mrs. A. R. Richards went to Burlington this morning to visit relatives for a few days.
Mrs. E. L. Benedict received a message yesterday afternoon calling her to the bedside of little Dorothy Curtis, her niece, at Carthage, North Dakota. Mrs. Benedict was on her way west in less than a half hour after receiving the message. Dorothy will be remembered by a very large number of Clinton people. She is with her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Whitlow and husband. Her father is in Japan, where her mother died a few years ago, where they were missionaries for many years.
T. R. Hutson and Miss Daisy Dean, C. A. McCormick and Miss Agnes Larson motored to Milwaukee Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Thos. A. Ames will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday evening, at their home corner Milwaukee avenue and Pleasant street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ames were born in Vermont and came of good old colonial stock. They have lived in Clinton forty years. A large number of friends and neighbors have been invited to help them celebrate this happy and unusual event. Mr. Ames is a brother of D. A. Ames, the well-known expert on penmanship. Their three children, Mrs. Elbert G. Ames, Mrs. Gustav G. Ames, and their husband of Dixon, Ill., and Dr. Walton A. Ames and wife of Evansville, Wis., were present.

TOWN LINE

Town Line, March 21.—Word has been received here by friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knope, formerly of this city, now of the town of Janesville, of the illness of their four children, Anna, Edna, Edna and Harry with the measles. Miss Anna is also suffering from a severe case of blood poisoning in her hand.
Miss Gustav G. Ames, Beloit, was the over-Sunday guest at the home of her brother, Wil Schoof.
Mr. and Mrs. Dick Behling and little son spent Sunday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Behling, Archie Garbin of Wales, Wis., was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin.
Miss Danni Mordie is spending some time at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elmer Neuman, near Brodhead.
Elmer Neuman, northwest of Beloit, one of the houses on the farm until recently owned by Mr. Finley.
Will Pollard recently, upon the occasion of his twentieth birthday. All the young people and some of the older ones gathered and spent the evening with games, followed by a delicious supper.
Fred Elfenbuhl, Afton road, is making substantial improvements to his farm home. A part of the old house has been torn away and will be replaced with a new, modern structure.

CLINTON

Clinton, March 21.—C. J. Smith, wife and children spent Sunday with relatives in Evansville.
Robert Hartshorn, who died in the Beloit hospital last week, was buried in the Clinton cemetery Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m., after services at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. W. Latta, just east of town. Mr. Hartshorn lived in Clinton several years ago. He was the father of Mrs. A. W. Latta, Mrs. Fred Latta of Clinton, and Col. Hartshorn of Janesville. He had been in very poor health for a long time and the end was not unexpected.

The Clinton Invincibles went to Beloit Saturday to play basketball with a Beloit team.
Miss Iva Reid of Rockford, and Miss Edith Grosz of Argyle, Ill., spent Sunday with their former Beloit college classmate, Miss Estelle Cooper.
John Westphal of Sharon, spent Saturday in Clinton.
Morrison Woodard of Virginia, arrived here Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. A. Woodard, and sister, Mrs. J. I. Green.

Mrs. A. R. Richards went to Burlington this morning to visit relatives for a few days.
Mrs. E. L. Benedict received a message yesterday afternoon calling her to the bedside of little Dorothy Curtis, her niece, at Carthage, North Dakota. Mrs. Benedict was on her way west in less than a half hour after receiving the message. Dorothy will be remembered by a very large number of Clinton people. She is with her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Whitlow and husband. Her father is in Japan, where her mother died a few years ago, where they were missionaries for many years.
T. R. Hutson and Miss Daisy Dean, C. A. McCormick and Miss Agnes Larson motored to Milwaukee Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Thos. A. Ames will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday evening, at their home corner Milwaukee avenue and Pleasant street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ames were born in Vermont and came of good old colonial stock. They have lived in Clinton forty years. A large number of friends and neighbors have been invited to help them celebrate this happy and unusual event. Mr. Ames is a brother of D. A. Ames, the well-known expert on penmanship. Their three children, Mrs. Elbert G. Ames, Mrs. Gustav G. Ames, and their husband of Dixon, Ill., and Dr. Walton A. Ames and wife of Evansville, Wis., were present.

cover the situation of German batteries that were causing considerable losses to the French troops. The French three-inchers soon forced the Germans to change their position to the rear. The guns are in position. Go ahead—you may fire, fire, aim at us, commandant, go on, fire." The mandant hesitated to give the order, but the German battery must be silenced, and finally the three-inchers struck up again, destroying the battery and annihilating the farm with the two sergeant-majors.

Souchon tells a similar story of a lieutenant posted in a tower a few hundred meters from the German trenches, from where he telephoned to the French artillery the positions of the enemy. During a half hour he continued sending indications and then finished with the words: "I hear the steps of Germans who are coming up the stairs. Believe nothing more that is said to you over the wire. I have my revolver, and shall never be taken alive. Nothing has ever been heard from this officer."

ROY M. CUMMINGS.

With a vote of seven hundred and twenty-two, the voters of the city of Janesville on Tuesday placed in nomination present Councilman Roy M. Cummings for re-election at the April election. In other words, with eight candidates running for the nomination Mr. Cummings received a trifling over a quarter of the total vote cast which should indicate that his candidacy meets the approval of the electorate of the city.

He has made a most admirable councilman during his four years in office and there should be no reason why he should not be given a royal endorsement at the coming election. His seven years' experience as a city official, as city clerk and later as councilman under the commission form of government, have made him a most able public servant and Janesville is fortunate in being able to command his services.

As was expected, the question of the management of the water works did not play the important feature it was hoped it would by some of the candidates and their friends, and the voters evidently realized that the office of councilman comes with more than the handling of this component part of the city's government. Mr. Cummings' work has not been confined to management of this concern, but has been most varied and he is eminently fitted for re-election.

The field for the nomination was a large one, there being eight aspirants for the nomination, while but two could be chosen. The majority rules and the six aspirants were more than enough to fill the field. The voters showed their true spirit and turn in and help elect one of the two men who were successful. There should be no sore places and everything should work in harmony.

MUDDLING THROUGH.

The Wall Street Journal says that: "At last, the long expected has happened. The administration is committed to an invasion of Mexico. Like weak cabinets with strong peace proclivities, it runs the danger of suffering afterwards from early timidity. There is the almost inevitable tendency to assume an end which cannot be foreseen; and to undertake a mild punitive expedition where safety and true economy would lie in a well-ordered demonstration of impressive dimensions."

"Whether it be from vanity or from a contempt for our state department, bred in Carranza during the deplorable Bryan regime, that ruler is certain to place the interests of his own party above the wishes of the United States. He has always done so, and is in the last degree unlikely to be overburdened with gratitude. He may cooperate with our expedition; but he is more likely to use the American invasion as a means to draw conflicting factions together for resistance."

"There is no need to ask who stimulated the Villa raid, with the undisguised activities of von Rintelen and others still under feeble investigation by the department of justice. The critical step has been taken and even in the raid itself striking evidence was furnished of our complete unreadiness for a campaign on any effective scale. We can reconcile ourselves to hearing further of jumbled machine guns and insufficient rifles, together with the other handicaps so costly in the Spanish war."

"It should be recognized also that the same forces, which by one means or another, drew Villa across the border will see that he keeps as large an expeditionary force as may be fully occupied for the greatest possible length of time. Catching the most lively flea in Mexico in the enormous Mexican blanket is no easy matter, and Villa knows the country, as the invaders do not. Invasion, moreover, automatically assumes him of a larger following and an obvious card for him to play would be a reconciliation with Carranza."

"Hope lies in a complete blockade of the country. It is doubtful if the supply of arms, and still more, of ammunition now in Mexico, is sufficient for a prolonged campaign. It is not to the interest of any nation to permit renewal of these munitions unless it were Germany, and of course her power of export is restricted. The situation is sufficiently serious, and may become more so if the policy is to be one of muddling through."

RAILROAD NOISES.

A writer in an eastern publication protests against needless whistling by railroad locomotives. He thinks most of the engineers are gentlemen in this respect, but finds some who enjoy celebrating with their big trumpet. There are some persons who enjoy rousing sleeping persons at night. As boys they would go through sleeping towns yelling "We won't go home till morning." They regard persons in their beds at midnight as stupid and lethargic, who should wake up and enjoy sporting life. Such youths are grown to manhood sometimes get control of a railroad locomotive. They seem to enjoy rousing the natives, and want the general public to perceive and admire their elation of

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

A Soliloquy.
To note or not to note—that is the question.
Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer
And walk, or bike or hire a horse and buggy,
Or take up arms against a sea of troubles,
Or of carburetors, oil pumps and tires
Of gasoline that's boosted to the heavens;
Or is it best to walk and never know them,
Or travel in the hot and dusty traffic
Thus invited and thereby escaping
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That cars are heir to. 'Tis a considerable summation,
Perhaps, devoutly to be wished.

It Was a Dream.

A friend of ours said the other day: "A friend who had heard that I sometimes suffered from insomnia told me a sure cure. 'Eat a quart of peanuts and drink two or three glasses of milk before going to bed,' said he, and I'll warrant you'll be asleep in half an hour." I did as he suggested, and my friend was right. I did go to sleep very soon after retiring. Then a friend with his head under his arm came along and asked me if I wanted to buy his foot. I was negotiating with him when the dragon on which I was riding slipped out of his skin, and left me floating in mid-air. While I was considering how to get down, a bull with two heads peered over the edge of the wall and said he would haul me up if I would first climb up and rig a windlass for him. So as I was sliding down the mountain side, the brakeman came in and I asked him when the train would reach my station. 'We passed your station miles back,' he said, calmly folding up the train and slipping it into his vest pocket. At this juncture the clown bounded into the ring and pulled the center pole out of the ground, lifting up the tent and all the people in it, while I stood on the earth below watching myself go out of sight among the clouds above. Then I awoke almost ten minutes."

Rather a Good Plan.

A Portland man sent his wife's dressmaker a note of thanks for saying she would make no more gowns until the old bill was paid. The women are wondering how it will work out, but hubby still chuckles over his best money-saving scheme.

"Mezzanipe," he said to her, "I have a confession to make. I cannot let you let me marry you without first telling you that three of my teeth are false. Will it make any difference?" "No, now that you have told me," she replied readily, "I love you the more for your honesty. I feel for your soul, Paracelus, not your teeth."

"Well, then, while I'm about it," he rushed on, "I want to say that one leg is false, too, and I have a few more ribs, a silver palate, somebody else's kneecap, and a wig."

"How glad you make me by telling me all this now!" he cried. "For me all this now!" he cried. "For me all this now!" he cried. "For me all this now!" he cried.

"You're?" he said suspiciously. "It's only a little one. But I feel that you ought to know. My—my shoulder blades are freckled."

Shuddering, he reached for his hat.

CUMMINGS WILL MAKE RACE WITH SHERIDAN

PRESENT COUNCILMAN AND FORMER ALDERMAN ARE NOMINATED AT PRIMARY ON TUESDAY.

LANGDON RUNS THIRD

Carries Fourth and Fifth Wards by Close Vote—Hyzer's Showing Confined to Third—Big Vote Is Polled.

Roy M. Cummings and John J. Sheridan secured the nomination for the office of councilman at the primary on Tuesday. Cummings, who is a candidate to succeed himself, led the field of eight aspirants with a total vote of 725, carrying the First, Second and Third wards and the Fourth ward. Hyzer, who served in the old council for several terms as alderman from the Fourth ward, received 673 votes, but did not secure a plurality in any ward. He came within five votes of carrying his home precinct, which went for Langdon with 207 votes. Cummings' lead over Sheridan was but 52.

William P. Langdon, whom many predicted would secure a place on the ticket, received an endorsement of 593, or eighty votes behind Sheridan. Langdon, besides carrying the Fourth ward, also led Sheridan in the Fifth ward, where the vote stood 102 for Langdon to 93 for Sheridan.

W. Hyzer ranked fourth when the votes were counted. His poll amounted to 421. Hyzer showed his strength in the Third ward, where he pressed Cummings hard, securing 183 votes to Cummings' 197.

The other four candidates finished as follows: Charles J. Young, 115; Broege, 113; Frank P. Starr, 100; and Thomas S. Nolan 60.

The total vote in this city on Tuesday was 3,822, one of the largest ever brought out, ranking with that cast at presidential elections and approaching the record of 4,042 established at the recall election in 1912. The interest of the voters in the result and the activity of the candidates were evident in every ward. In the Fourth ward, where the race was particularly hot, the vote was largely for Cummings, Hyzer and Langdon. The Third ward cast 964. Cummings, Hyzer and Langdon all showed strength in this precinct, while Sheridan received over one hundred votes. In the Second, 464, and in the Fifth 354.

The success of Sheridan in securing the nomination with Cummings came as a surprise except to those who were in close touch with the political activity of the various candidates. Langdon adherents were confident throughout the day, but their candidate failed to carry the Fourth and Fifth wards over Sheridan at the plurality expected. Langdon showed strength in every ward, however, although he ran third in the First and Fourth in the Second and Third. It was Sheridan's consistently heavy votes in all of the wards that gave him a place on the ticket. Sheridan ranked second in the First, Second, Fourth and Fifth wards and fourth in the Third ward. His showing in the First and Second wards was surprising, his margin over Langdon in the First being 83, and 30 in the Second. Hyzer's strength was confined largely to his own ward, the Third, where he pressed Cummings for the lead with 183 votes against 197.

The race narrowed down to Sheridan and Cummings, a hot fight predicted at the regular election on April 4th. Political wisecracks were busy today figuring out the winner with varying results. Some ventured to predict that Langdon's strength would swing the election, while others would result in the re-election of Cummings. Sheridan supporters, however, claimed a victory in the Third ward and believed that Langdon support could be recruited to their ranks as well as the majority of the votes which went to Young, Broege and Nolan on Tuesday. Both factions admitted that the contest would be close with but few votes to spare. Issues will be squarely drawn in the course of the campaign and the result will be as large as not larger than that cast at the primary.

A summary of the primary results is given in the following table:

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	Total
Cummings	183	119	197	151	75	725
Sheridan	148	101	108	243	93	693
Langdon	79	71	134	207	102	593
Hyzer	69	93	183	19	19	421
Young	30	11	9	29	36	115
Broege	11	24	7	62	9	113
Starr	12	28	38	13	4	100
Nolan	13	9	12	23	5	60

CANTON PLAYS LITTLE ATTENTION TO STRIFE GOING ON IN CHINA.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Canton, China, March 22.—Notwithstanding the reports of revolutionary victories in Szechuen which are reaching Canton, this city is very quiet and at present there are no indications that Kwangtung province is greatly interested in the revolutionary military movements.

General Lung Chik-wang, the military governor, has a tight grip on affairs and is loyal to the Peking government. As long as he remains so, there seems to be little danger of any extensive trouble in Canton. Half troops of Chinese commanded by General Lung are in the city. He has kept these separated from the troops which make up the rest of the forces, and so far the Hunanese have not decided to move to join the movement against the Peking government instituted by Yuan province.

Canton, even in normal times, is a turbulent center. The throwing of stones is common in this city, and the government is constantly on the look-out for smugglers who bring in explosives. Consequently General Lung lives in a bomb-proof house and is practically a prisoner, as he does not dare to move about the city without taking every precaution to protect himself and the persons in sympathy with the movement against Yuan Shi-kai.

NEW FILM THEATER TO OPEN MAY FIRST

JANESVILLE MOTOR COMPANY BUILDING TRANSFORMED TO SHOW HOUSE OF DISTINCTION AND BEAUTY.

LOCAL MEN IN VENTURE

Stockholders Hold Meeting and Elect Directors Last Night—J. A. Strimble Is President.

Janesville, along about May 1st, will witness the opening of one of the most elaborate picture houses in the West. The new showhouse of the Janesville Amusement company, which is building in the corner of the old Janesville Motor company building at 17-19 Main street.

The stockholders of the company met last evening and elected a board of directors. This board is composed of Harry O. Nowlan, J. A. Strimble, Dr. H. Farnsworth, Frank E. Sutherland and Harry Jones. The directors then met and chose Mr. Strimble president; Dr. Farnsworth, vice president; Mr. Nowlan, secretary and Mr. Sutherland, treasurer.

The new picture house is a masterpiece of modern high-class and up-to-date theatre. When finished it will be as strictly fire proof as any building or theatre in the city. The lobby and foyer are in one building and the theatre proper in a second. This latter is separated from the first building by a three wall of the structure. The other three walls of the structure are of brick, laid with cement plaster previous to the plating of the decorative work. There are 672 seats in the theatre.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS BASKETBALL SQUADS TO PLAY NEXT WEEK

Four Class Teams at High School Will Play for Championship Next Week—Winners Meet Faculty.

Now that the first team of the high school has finished their season in basketball all the interest of the students will be turned to the inter-class games which will be staged on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Much interest has been aroused by the school and the contests will probably prove very exciting. Each class has organized their team and elected a captain. Regular practices have been held for the past two weeks and all the fives are in good condition for the struggle.

One feature of the tournament will be that the winners of the series will play a faculty team. The contest will be played on a week from next Thursday night, April 6th. Years ago the faculty-student game was one of the big things of the season and the students were always anxious to get into the struggle. With their pedagogues Captain Keck of the sophomores will have a strong bunch for his squad and they are confident that they can put it over on their pupils.

On Monday evening of next week the freshmen will meet the sophomores and on Tuesday the two upper classes will clash. The winners of these two games will meet in the final struggle for the championship on Wednesday night after school March 29th. Each of the classes are planning to attend the games in a body and give loyal support to their teams. The regulation of the inter-class league is that no man who has played on the first team as a regular is eligible for any of the class fives.

The freshman squad is captained by Richard Cushing, who has been sending his men through stiff drills for the past few days, getting his candidates in shape. Cassidy, Cushing's running mate on the Catholic team, was chosen to lead the senior five in the race for the honors. The juniors are also coming up strong and they will give the seniors a good game on next Tuesday night.

ELECTRICAL ERA IN RAILROADING DAWNS

440 MILES OF THE "MILWAUKEE" MAIN LINE OVER THE ROCKIES ELECTRIFIED.

A new era in railroading dawns—another milestone in the world's progress has been erected. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway has inaugurated this great epoch by accomplishing the longest extent of main line electrification in the world.

The electrified district is that of the Great Continental Divide, extending from Harlowton, Mont., to Avery, Idaho, a distance of 440 miles—(115 miles from Three Forks to Deer Lodge, Montana, now in operation.)

The power used to operate the giant electric locomotives is obtained from mountain waterfalls. From the hydro-electric plant at Great Falls and from other plants, the electricity is transmitted at the high tension of 100,000 volts alternating current to substations of the railway, and there is stepped down and changed to 3,000 volts direct, the current used by the locomotives.

One of the scientific marvels is regenerative braking, by which the train on down grades, instead of consuming electricity, actually produces it, and by which at the same time the speed of the train is kept under perfect control without using the air brakes.

With electrification has come conservation of resources, more efficient and economical operation, better maintenance of schedules, the practical elimination of all trouble due to snow and cold, smoother riding, and enhanced comforts owing to freedom from smoke, dirt and cinders.

Electrification added to its other advantages, makes the "Milwaukee" more than the road of efficiency, comfort and economy. Remember this fact when planning your next trip to the Pacific North Coast.

This man receives only a moderate income but he meets all the obligations that he has assumed promptly and easily. He is financially prepared. When his seasonal expenses fall due the man's winter supply of fuel, the vacations for himself and family, taxes, life insurance, etc.—he has the money ready with which to meet them.

This he does by making regular partial payments, throughout the year, to apply in advance on these items. There is no guess work and no worry about it. He maintains several accounts in the Thrift Department of this bank, which furnishes him with a card record for each of his seasonal expenses. The plan is well worth looking into. Gall-Bladder Diseases

Cured by the Milk and Rest Treatment

The gall-bladder is a reservoir for the bile and holds about one ounce. It is filled between meals and emptied into the bowel as the food enters it following a meal. It is closely connected to the liver by tubes or ducts.

This gall bladder and ducts leading to the small intestine become diseased and cause much trouble and suffering. When neglected an operation usually follows and the result is the removal of a much needed gall bladder.

Warning!—The Milk and Rest treatment, taken in time, will save your gall-bladder and your health.

HORRORS! THE PRICE OF BEER IS RAISED THREE TIMES IN AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Budapest, March 21.—The price of beer in Austria-Hungary has been raised for the third time since the war started by $1.50 per hectoliter (22 gallons and two cents a glass). Before the war a glass of beer in a restaurant cost four cents; now it is ten cents. The breweries justify the increase by announcing that it is almost impossible for them

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ...

The wrangle was going from bad to worse when Bill came in with Seagrue's coat. The latter, putting it on, took his hat, directed Lug to post the bulletin, beckoned to the attorney and accompanied by him and Bill, started for the station to catch the main line local then due. When the train pulled in Seagrue and the attorney boarded it. Bill started back for camp.

Spike, left alone, went into his tent. He sat some moments thinking. Then he rose and from a corner got out the suit of clothes, carefully put away, that Helen had bought for him in Las Vegas. The least he could do, he felt, was to take this over to Rhinelander's camp and return it to her with such lame explanation as he could invent to cover the occasion.

He found Helen alone. She regarded him strangely as he approached. Spike would rather have faced a sheriff than to face her on such an errand. He shuffled toward her ill at ease and her silence did not help to allay his embarrassment.

"I know you bought the clothes for me," he muttered, "because I helped you get the contracts. I hated to turn back the way I did to Seagrue's camp. I hate to bring these back to you. But the way I'm fixed I can't double-cross Seagrue."

Helen saw he was greatly humiliated. And she was mystified a little by his words. "Spike," she said, kindly, "the clothes are nothing. But what have I done to you that you should treat me in the way you did?"

Spike shuffled on his feet and swung his head unasily. "Not a thing in the world," was all he could say.

"Why have you acted in this way?" she demanded. "I bought you a ticket to the city—you promised to go—why didn't you?"

He labored in continued confusion to explain. He tried to tell her Seagrue had done many things for him; he told her he owed Seagrue a lot of money and he had no hope of ever paying him back except by work, and that he didn't feel he ought to break away now.

Storm and Rhinelander came up at that moment. They greeted Spike. He avoided their eyes as much as possible and returned their greeting in a shame-faced way. Helen answered the surprise that overspread the faces of Storm and Rhinelander. "It's no wonder he's ashamed to speak to you," she said severely. "You would hardly believe it, I know; but the fact is he has turned over to Seagrue again." The two men looked at Spike with undisguised contempt. Their attitude made him desperate. "Oh, I know what you think of me," he said with a reckless swing of his head. "I can't help it. I can't explain. It would take me from now till the middle of next week, if I tried—and then you'd think less of me than you do now. Never be kind to me again. It's hopeless for me—but I can't help it."

The three watched him shuffle away. Rhinelander shook his head. "There's a mystery somewhere in it. I can't make it out. Some day we'll know."

"Well, in any case, I certainly don't want these clothes," declared Helen, looking at the bundle Spike had left in her hands. "They're no use in the world to me." A laborer was passing. "Here, you—" she said to the man, "take this suit. If it fits you," she added, before the man could recover from his surprise, "it's yours."

At Seagrue's camp, Bill and the paymaster were handing checks out to the men. The latter stood about the car in discontented groups and discussed their situation as being thrown so suddenly out of work. The paymaster handed Bill a check. It was for Spike. Bill yelled his name. A man hard by pointed to Rhinelander's camp. "There's Spike," said the man, "over there at Rhinelander's."

Bill's sharp eyes followed the gesture. Spike at that moment was just leaving Rhinelander, Helen and Storm. Bill, a knave of more than ordinary discernment and one who hated Spike for his share in the fight at Las Vegas, saw in the incident his chance to get even. He put the check aside and a moment later when Spike appeared at the pay car, Bill was ready. Descending the car steps, Bill called to Spike as the latter came forward. Bill advanced to meet him. "What do you mean, Spike," demanded Bill in loud and aggressive tones, pitched so that everybody might hear, "by running over to Rhinelander's camp all the time? What are you up to now, Spike?"

Spike was in the worst possible mood to be badgered by anybody. With a hot expletive he bade Bill mind his own business, and offered gratuitously to break his head.

Bill turned to the men with a shout: "This is the duck," he cried, "that helped Rhinelander steal our right of way, boys. He's the guy that's thrown us all out of work. What do you know about that?"

Spike, in most opprobrious language, flatly gave Bill the lie. The men, most of whom were spoiling for a row, closed in to hear and devour the heated argument that the two enemies engaged in. Accusations and denials fell thick and fast; abuse followed assertions; hard words and a deep-seated enmity raised the tempers of both men, and Bill, without further warning, swung and sent Spike with a terrific left-hander to the ground.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Shakespeare's tercentenary celebration, to take place in April in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the death of the "Bard of Avon," will be a succession of plays, fete, and pageants throughout the civilized world and especially in the English speaking countries. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the well-known English actor-manager, who is among the most celebrated of all the interpreters of Shakespeare, is now completing a film spectacle of "Macbeth" in California. Constance Collier, who had played in London with Sir Herbert, and who is expected to appear with him in his Shakespeare festival in New York, is the Lady Macbeth. This film will probably be the only cinema contribution to the Shakespearean celebration.

MEETS GODFATHER AT LAST IN FILMS

When Nell Shipman was introduced to the man who was to play the part of her father in the feature, "God's Country and the Woman," she Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and Constance Collier as Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

Lovers of Shakespearean drama will be given the opportunity of seeing these famous stars in "Macbeth" this spring.

Incidentally met for the second time in her life the man who is her godfather. Her first meeting with Mr. Bainbridge, the meeting she doesn't remember, was in Victoria, B. C., on a baptismal occasion when Miss Shipman named the name of Nell. Mr. Bainbridge, under the responsibility of being her godfather. Just how seriously he took the responsibility can be seen by the fact that he has never seen the baby since until this recent day. Men are independable godfathers.

MYRTLE STEEDMAN'S IS OUT OF DOORS
Myrtle Steedman, who has climbed breathlessly to the high ridge of the Temecula range, in the southern part of California, declares emphatically that she owes the larger part of her prosperity, personal perfection and popularity to the faithfulness with which she indulges in outdoor exercise.

Athletics do not come unannounced to Myrtle, for she was at one time, or another, a dancer, a miner and an opera prima donna. Outside of the studio she spends most of her time driving a high-speed racing car, walking, splashing in the creek and sleeping in an out-of-doors porch.

Bruce McRae and Gerda Holmes will appear the first week in April in "The Chain Invisible," the scenes for which were taken in the heart of the Cuban jungles.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Towering snow-capped peaks arranged in all the grandeur of nature's Masterhand, mountains reaching up to cloudland, rock-bound majestic lakes clear as a mirror, dashing mountain streams that leap from precipices to precipice, and living glaciers—all this and much more will be unfolded by Lyman H. Howe at the Myers theatre March 24 and 25, matinee Saturday, during a memorable pictorial pilgrimage through Glacier National park. For sheer grandeur the scenery cannot be surpassed on this continent or any other. The film is a picture of lake and mountain and sky blended in a way that only the Master of the universe could form, using the elements of Chaos for material and the roof of the world for canvas. Without question within the confines of the park comprising about 1500 square miles is contained the most beautiful array of tremendous out-of-door scenes that the imagination could conceive. Exceptionally interesting, too, are studies of the American Indian, but not the Indian of the newspapers, nor of the novel, nor as conceived by the "tenderfoot" but the real Indian as he is in his daily life among his own people, his friends, and where he is not embarrassed by the presence of strangers, nor trying to produce effects.

As is typical of Howe's exhibition a great variety of other scenes will be presented, such as an aeroplane flight above the clouds, a torpedo boat struggling through a terrific gale, curious examples of crystallization, logging in Italy, a graphic portrayal of the movements of animals reproduced so lowly that they show details which the human eye could never detect, the birth of Forth bridge in Scotland, Madeira, winter in the Swiss Alps, and one of the greatest industries in our era showing every phase that enters into the construction of the latest type automobile as seen on a trip through the Willy-Overland plant at Toledo, Ohio. Besides there will be freely interspersed many of those ever welcome cartoon comedy films which in ways form such a pleasing diversion in Howe's productions.

Seats are now selling for the engagement of Cohan and Harris' latest farce hit, "It Pays to Advertise," due at the Myers theatre March 23.

Too many good things always found in Cohan and Harris' successes is the best reason to explain the enthusiasm shown for this engagement. "It Pays to Advertise" experienced an unusually long run in New York, being stationed at the Geo. M. Cohan theatre on Broadway for one solid year, gaining the greatest popularity of any farce in recent years. Rol Cooper Magrue and Walter Hackett are responsible for this farce, which, in addition to a love story that wins the enthusiasm of the feminine portion of the audience, is fine philosophy for the successful business men of the country. Cohan and Harris will send their own players to this city, which is an added guarantee for splendid entertainment.

Rodney Martin, a rich man's son, who has been the despair of his father because of his disinclination to go to work, is persuaded, through love for his father's pretty stenographer, to go into business after his father has disinherited him. Rodney's father is a soap king, and the son decides to go into the same business and adopts a strenuous advertising campaign to attract the attention of buyers. Father doesn't believe in advertising and tries to dissuade his son, the only result being to make the boy plunge more heavily into the advertising game. This, in brief, is the story of the play, the complete plot of which it would be impossible to give in a way that would adequately express its intensely humorous situations to the feminine portion of the audience. The farce is from the pens of Rol Cooper Magrue and Walter Hackett, who have brought forth one of the most laughable plays presented in recent years. The cast consists of Elsie Glyn, M. J. Sullivan, Gertrude Leland, James I. Mitchell, Daniel A. Anderson, James J. Gardner, Ruby Herriman, H. N. Dudgeon, Felix McClure, Doris Jordan, Page Spencer and Mason Emerson.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should be clear and healthy after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cured with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, dull, listless, no clear feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or simply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

He Removed the Danger Signal

Frank W. Sherman, Laconia, N. Y., writes: "I suffered with kidney trouble, had a tired feeling in my back, did not have any ambition and felt all tired out. I used Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days began to feel better, and now I have entirely recovered and have had no return of my painful symptoms."

One cannot help becoming nervous and feeling tired and worn out when the kidneys fail to filter and throw out the waste matter from the blood. The kidneys cause kidney troubles and back aches.

Backache is one of Nature's danger signals that the kidneys are clogged and are inactive. It is often followed by rheumatism, annoying bladder and urinary disorders, puffiness, swellings under the eyes, swollen ankles and painful joints.

Foley Kidney Pills get right at the source of trouble. They invigorate the kidneys, properly perform their duty, eliminate the poisonous waste matter from the system.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1899), on page 240:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the clinical signs of the disease have been found."

"In the granulation products and associated pneumonia the smaller caseous areas become the smaller caseous areas."

"Not a sound save the sharp catch of breath over all the chest."

"I have been thinking," Woodhouse continued gravely, "that a place hardly as public as this would have been better for our meeting. Perhaps—"

"You fear the English agents? But they do not expect to use the place where there is light and plenty of people. You know their clumsiness."

Woodhouse nodded. His eyes traveled slowly to the bold beauty of the woman's face.

"The man Capper will do for the stalking horse—a willing nag," went on the woman in a half whisper across the table.

"You know the ways of the Wilhelmstrasse," Capper is called. We call the target. The English suspect him. They will catch him. You get his number and do the work in safety. We have one man to draw their fire, another to accompany the deed. We'll let the English bag him at Malta—a word placed in the right direction will fix that—and you'll go on to Alexandria to do the real work."

"Good, good!" Woodhouse agreed. "The Wilhelmstrasse will give him a number, and send him on this mission on my recommendation. I had that assurance before ever I met the fellow tonight. They—"

—know little Capper's reputation, and as a matter of fact, I think they are convinced he's a little less dangerous working for the Wilhelmstrasse than against it. At Malta the English are firing squad at dawn—and the English are convinced they've nipped something big in the hand, whereas they've little weasel who's ready to bite any hand that feeds him."

Woodhouse's level glance never left the eyes of the woman called Louise.

"But if they should be some slip-up at Malta," he interjected. "If somehow this Capper should get through to Alexandria, wouldn't that be somewhat embarrassing for me?"

"Not at all, my dear Woodhouse," she caught him up with a little pat on his hand. "His instructions will be to get to Alexandria and stay there. He will not be coming back to Malta. You can slip in unobserved by the English, and the trick will be turned."

Woodhouse sat watching the coverings of a dancer on the stage. Finally he put a question just closely.

"The whole scheme, then, is—"

Woodhouse answered quickly. "Captain Woodhouse, the real Woodhouse, you know—is to be transferred from his present post at Wady Halfa, on the Nile, to Gibraltar—transfer is to be announced in the regular way with a week's notice. A messenger and a signal service he will have access and as such take his place in the garrison on the Rock. There are two others of the Wilhelmstrasse at Gibraltar already. They, too, are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Woodhouse from Alexandria. Capper, with a number, will start from Berlin for Alexandria. Capper will never arrive in Alexandria. You will."

"With a number—the number expected?" the man asked.

"If you are clever en route—yes," she answered, with a smile. "Remember, is Billy Capper's best friend and worst enemy already in the time and route of departure for Alexandria?"

"To the very hour, yes. And, now, dear friend, the matter is settled."

Interruption came suddenly from the stage. The man, in shirt-sleeves and with hair wildly rumpled over his eyes, came prancing out from the wings. He held up a puffery hand to check the orchestra. Hundreds about the tables rose in a gust of excitement, of questioning wonder.

"Herren!" The stage manager's bellows carried to the farthest arches of the Winter Garden. "News just published by the general staff. Russia has mobilized five divisions on the frontier of East Prussia and Galicia!"

Not a sound save the sharp catch of breath over all the chest. The time of the chest manager, nodded to the orchestra leader, and in a fur the breath mouths began to sway. Men climbed on table tops, sang in tremendous chorus, and all sang in tremendous chorus.

CHAPTER III
Billy Capper at Play.

The night of July twenty-sixth, the scene is the wide, open, gliding walk before the Cafe Pythias, where the Corus St. Louis flings its night tide of idlers into the broader stream of the Cannibiers, Marseilles' Broadway—the white street of the great Provencal port. Here at the crossing of these two streets summer nights are incidents to stick in the traveler's mind long after he sees the gray walls of the Chateau d'it fade below the steamer's rail. The flower girls in their little pulpit pressing dewy violets and fragrant clusters of rosebuds upon the strollers with persuasive eloquence; the mystical eyes of hooded monks who see everything as they pass, yet seem to see nothing; the Jews from Algiers and red-tousled Senegalese—all the color from the hot lands of the Mediterranean is there.

But on the night of July twenty-sixth the old spirit of indolence, of pleasure seeking, flirtation, intriguing, which was wont to make this heart of arolic life in Marseilles pulseless languorously was gone. Instead, an electric tenseness was abroad, pervading, infectious. About each sidewalk table heads were clustered close, and eloquent hands aided explosive argument. Around the news kiosk at the Cafe Pythias corner a constant stream eddied. Men snatched papers from their faces and plunged into their folders and blundered into their buried pedestrians as they walked, felled in the jolly columns. Now and again half-naked urchins came charging, and the Cannibiers, waving simphaler extras, were gone.

"L'Allemagne s'arme! La guerre vient!" Up from the Quai marched a dozen sailors from a torpedo boat, armed linked so that they almost spanned the Cannibiers. Their red-tasseled caps were pushed back, cocky angles on their black heads, and as they marched they shouted in the Quai Berlin post—hour—the first hallucinations of the great madness—gripped Marseilles.

For Captain Woodhouse, just in from Berlin that evening, all this swirling excitement had but an incidental interest. He sat alone by the little iron tables before the Cafe Pythias, sipping his beer, and followed the eddying of the swirls about the news kiosk. Always his attention would come back, however, to center on the thin shoulders of a man sitting fifteen or twenty feet away with a wine cooler by his side. He could not see the face of the wine drinker; he did not want to. All he wanted to do was to keep those thin shoulders in sight. Each time a solicitous waiter renewed the bottle in the wine cooler Captain Woodhouse nodded grimly, as a doctor might when he recognized the symptoms of advancing fever in a patient.

So for two days Billy Capper crossed to Paris, and now on this third day here in the Mediterranean port, Woodhouse had kept ever in sight those thin shoulders and that trembling hand beyond the constantly crooked elbow. Not a pleasant task, he had come to loathe and abominate the very wrinkles in the back of that duty it was for Captain Woodhouse to follow the eddying of the swirls about the news kiosk. Always his attention would come back, however, to center on the thin shoulders of a man sitting fifteen or twenty feet away with a wine cooler by his side. He could not see the face of the wine drinker; he did not want to. All he wanted to do was to keep those thin shoulders in sight. Many a long starlit hour alone on the deck of the Castle Claire Captain Woodhouse found himself tortured by the northern horizon line. Trembling and breathless before the imminent disaster—a great field of grain, each stalk bearing for its head the helmeted head of a man. Out of the east came a glow which spread from boundary to boundary, waxed stronger in the wind of fate. Finally the fire, devastating—insensate, began its sweep through the close-standing mazes of the grain. Swift leveling under the scythe of the flame was a girl, alone, appalled. Woodhouse could see her plainly and though a cinema was unwillingly swift pictures before him—the girl caught in this vast acreage of fire, in the standing grain, with destruction drawing nearer in incredible strides. He saw her wide eyes, her streaming hair—this, her running through the grain, whose heads were the helmeted heads of men. Her hands groped blindly and she was calling, calling, with none to answer in aid. Jane Capper alone in the face of Europe's burning!

Strive as he would, Woodhouse could not screen this picture from his eyes. He tried to hope that ere this, discretion had come, that she had fled to "make good," and that she had fled from Paris, one of the great army of refugees who had already begun to pour out of the gates of France. But, no! there was no mistaking the determination, he had read in those brown eyes that day on the express from Calais. "I couldn't go scampers back to New York just because somebody starts a war over here."

Brave, yes; but hers was the bravery of ignorance. This little person from the States, on her first venture into the complex life of the Continent, could not know what war there would mean: the terror and magnitude of it. And now where was she? In Paris, caught in its hysteria of patriotism and darkling fear of what the war now would bring forth. Or had she started for England, and become wedged in the jam of terrified thousands battling for place on the Channel steamers? Was her fine self-reliance upholding her, or had the crisis sapped her courage and thrown her back on the common helplessness of women before disaster?

Captain Woodhouse, the self-sufficient and aloof, whose training had been all toward suppression of every instinct save that in the line of duty, was surprised at himself. That a little American inconnu—a "business person," he would have styled her under conditions less personal—should have come into his life in this delicate way was, to say the least, highly irregular. The man tried to swing his reason as a club against his heart—and failed miserably. No, the fine brave spirit that looked out of those big brown eyes would not be argued out of court. Jane Capper was a girl who was different, and that very difference was altogether alluring. Woodhouse caught himself going over the incidents of their meeting, and reviewed scraps of their conversation on the train, lingering on the pat slang she used so unconsciously.

Just before the Castle Claire, ever had a thought for Captain Woodhouse. The man winced a little at this speculation. And it was fair of him when he so glibly practised a deception on business, would she understand the breakwater of Alexandria came a wireless, which was posted at the head of the saloon companionway: "Germany declares war on Russia. German flying column reported moving through Luxembourg on Belgium."

The fire was set to the crash. Upon landing, Captain Woodhouse's first business was to go to a hotel on the Grand Square, which is the favorite stopping place of officers coming down from the Nile country. He fought his way through the predatory hordes of yelling donkey boys and obsequious rickshaws at the door, and entered the palm-lined court, which served as office and lounge. Woodhouse paused for a second behind a screen of palm leaves and cast a quick eye around the court. None of the loungers there was known to him. He strode to the desk.

"Very good," the Greek clerk behind the desk smiled a welcome. "Perhaps," Woodhouse answered shortly, and he turned the register around to read the names of the recent comers. On the first page he found nothing to interest him, but among the arrivals of the day before he saw this entry: "C. G. Woodhouse, Capt. Sig. Service; Wady Halfa. After it was entered the room number: '210.'"

Captain Woodhouse, the self-sufficient and aloof, whose training had been all toward suppression of every instinct save that in the line of duty, was surprised at himself. That a little American inconnu—a "business person," he would have styled her under conditions less personal—should have come into his life in this delicate way was, to say the least, highly irregular. The man tried to swing his reason as a club against his heart—and failed miserably. No, the fine brave spirit that looked out of those big brown eyes would not be argued out of court. Jane Capper was a girl who was different, and that very difference was altogether alluring. Woodhouse caught himself going over the incidents of their meeting, and reviewed scraps of their conversation on the train, lingering on the pat slang she used so unconsciously.

Just before the Castle Claire, ever had a thought for Captain Woodhouse. The man winced a little at this speculation. And it was fair of him when he so glibly practised a deception on business, would she understand the breakwater of Alexandria came a wireless, which was posted at the head of the saloon companionway: "Germany declares war on Russia. German flying column reported moving through Luxembourg on Belgium."

very edge of the Quai, Woodhouse, waiting by the doors, saw that he was not the only shrewd looker against the dead walls flanking the narrow pavement a slinding figure twisted and writhed after the drunkard, now spread-eagled all over the street. Woodhouse quickened his pace on the opposite sidewalk. The street was one lined with warehouses, their closely shuttered windows, the only eyes, snapper dropped his stick, laboriously halted, and started to go back for it. That instant the shadow against the walls detached itself and darted for the victim. Woodhouse leaped to the cobble and gained Capper's side just as he dropped like a sack of rags under a blow from the dock rat's fist.

"Son of a pig! This is my meat; you clear out!" The humped black beetle of a man whipped the spawling Capper and faced Woodhouse. Quick as light the Captain's right arm shot out; a third as of a maul on an Apache's head, the black Apache turned a half somersault, striking the cobbles with the back of his head. Woodhouse stooped, lifted the limp Capper from the street stones, and staggered with him to the lighted area of the Cannibiers, a block away. He hailed a late-cruising fiacre, propped Capper in the seat, and took his place beside him.

To La Vendee, Quai de la Fraternite, Woodhouse ordered. The driver, wise in the ways of the city, asked no questions, but clucked to his crew bait. Woodhouse turned to the quick examination of the unconscious man by his side. He feared a stab wound; he found nothing but a nasty cut on the head, made by brass knuckles. With the knife helping, any sort of a blow would have put Capper out, he reflected.

Woodhouse turned his back on the bundle of clothes and reached for the owner grasped it in his comical length. Without trying to disengage the clasp, Woodhouse gripped the wood near the crook of the handle, he applied a match to the end of the clasp, and the match was lit. He turned on hidden threads and came off in his hand. An exploring finger in the exposed hollow end of the clasp encountered a rolled slip of paper. Woodhouse pulled it out, substituted in its place a thin clean sheet torn from a card-case memorandum, then screwed the crook on the stick down on the secret receptacle. By the light of a match he assured himself the paper he had taken from the cane was what he wanted.

"Larceny from the person—guilty," he murmured, with a wry smile of distaste. "But assault—unpremeditated."

The conveyance trundled down a long spit of stone and stopped by the side of a black bull, spotted with round eyes. Woodhouse ordered the round eyes to stop, and the conveyance sent a tip, helped Woodhouse lift Capper to the ground and prop him against a bulkhead. A boss, summoned from a match by the cabby's shrill whistle, heaved Woodhouse's explanation with sympathy.

"Occasionally, yes, m'sieu, the passengers from Marseilles have these signs at parting; he gravely commented, accepting the explanation. Woodhouse had rummaged from the unconscious man's wallet and a crinkled note from Woodhouse. Up the gangplank, feet first, went the new agent of the Wilhelmstrasse. The one who called himself "captain in his majesty's signal service" returned to his hotel.

At dawn, La Vendee cleared the harbor, and the next day he was bearing a very sick Billy Capper to his destiny. Five hours later the Castle liner, Castle Claire, for the Cape via Alexandria and Suez direct, sailed from Calais. "I couldn't go scampers back to New York just because somebody starts a war over here."

Brave, yes; but hers was the bravery of ignorance. But, no! there was no mistaking the determination, he had read in those brown eyes that day on the express from Calais. "I couldn't go scampers back to New York just because somebody starts a war over here."

Brave, yes; but hers was the bravery of ignorance. This little person from the States, on her first venture into the complex life of the Continent, could not know what war there would mean: the terror and magnitude of it. And now where was she?

Orfordville News

Orfordville, March 21.—Roy J. T. Lutz went to Janesville on Tuesday to attend the Sunday school institute which is being held there.

Miss Eugene Taylor and daughter of the village are visiting with Orfordville friends on Tuesday.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 31.

The difference between "digestibility" and "indigestibility" is used as an argument to frighten the public away from the most natural, essential, and agreeable of food reforms.

As to the bran sifted out of the wheat meal in the preparation of fine white flour, some millers say that the silicon which the bran contains is practically "ground glass." They caution humanity, therefore, against any attempt to eat "ground glass," basing their warning upon the idea that when bran enters the body as a food it must necessarily be eliminated in a sand-papery condition that scours and scratches its victim into death.

It would be quite logical for them to declare that because whole wheat contains iron in an easily assimilable form, therefore, such iron should be eliminated in order to protect the body from an attack of malaria.

They could say with equal grace that because whole wheat contains calcium in an assimilable form the calcium should be removed lest in some whitewashing or plastering fashion it should stiffen up the walls of the intestines with a fortification of cement.

Applying their philosophy, they might well declare that because whole wheat contains magnesium the magnesium should be removed for fear the whole wheat eater might clog his digestive apparatus with an accumulation of foot-cases or face-powder.

They could say that because whole wheat contains phosphorus in many complex forms, such as the nucleoproteins, the lecithins and the simpler phosphates, such phosphorus compounds should be removed in order that the stomach might not be converted into a match factory.

They could conveniently add to their arguments against whole wheat that because it contains fluorides such fluorides should be removed so that the liver might not be etched like a frosted window pane or destroyed by an attack of "rough on rats."

There are many prejudices to overcome before whole wheat bread, whole wheat cakes, whole wheat biscuits, whole wheat muffins, whole wheat waffles and other whole wheat breads, stuffs, with all their wealth of vitality, can be restored to the people. The "ground glass" idea will probably meet with the sympathy of many doomed souls who love their sickly loaf.

Some of the millers go further than the "ground glass" warning in their attempt to defend white flour. They actually declare that the bran of wheat is a powerful irritant and therefore, people not in normal health cannot use it without injury.

They say that the bran in whole wheat might be advantageously suggested by the recent appearance on the market of numerous brands of branflour is an undesirable element in bread because it is "indigestible."

Paper is "indigestible," so is nutmeg, cinnamon, ginger, mustard, mace, allspice, cloves. The fibre of orange, pineapple, celery, string beans, asparagus, cantaloupe, is "indigestible." The seeds of strawberries, raspberries, figs, grapes are "indigestible," just as the bran of wheat is "indigestible" and for the same reason, if the word "indigestible" is assumed to mean that in their journey through the bowels of the body these substances are taken up by the body and transformed into tissue.

None of such substances is actually indigestible, in its course through the body the bran surrenders its soluble extractives which are taken up by the tissues and the residue which remains behind is a most important and necessary function in the intestines—a function which will be fully described later on.

Every time we eat a roasted or boiled ear of corn, we eat the bran. Every time we eat Boston baked beans or fresh peas we eat the bran of these legumes. It is well indeed that we eat these things, because, while they are not digested, in themselves in the sense of being taken up and oxidized in the production of heat and energy, they nevertheless contribute to the body the soluble salts and colloids which they contain and without which energy-producing foods are useless to the living body.

Let us take an animal membrane such as a bladder and fill it with a solution of any of the food minerals and hang it on a nail against the wall. It will hang there for days, weeks or months, and there will be no leakage of its contents through the skin. Not a drop will ooze through the membrane to appear on the outside. We see that it guards its contents as faithfully as would a glass bottle properly corked.

If we now take the filled bladder and immerse it in a tub containing another solution of different density, a remarkable phenomenon will be observed. The contents of the bladder will begin to pass through the membrane into the solution on the outside will begin to pass through the membrane into the solution on the inside will be identical in character.

The dissimilar liquids will be thoroughly diffused. The process by which this diffusion is brought about is called osmosis. Osmosis is going on in the body all the time.

We recreate and thus change the mineral constituency of the internal sections every time we eat. We thereby continue to change the character and density of the fluids in which the cells obtain their nutriment. As long as life continues osmosis does not cease. Protoplasm derives its nutriment through this process of osmosis.

In fevers or wasting diseases accompanied by extreme exhaustion as the result of inability to consume food, or in cases of starvation, the fluids inside the cells gradually become identical in specific gravity with the fluids in which they are bathed so that osmosis becomes very feeble. When it ceases altogether death ensues.

The minerals which nature has put into wheat and man so deliberately removes from his diet are lost to all his needs and the vitalizing mission which they are designed to perform naturally and benevolently are not performed at all.

Just as chopped meat surrenders its mineral salts to the water in which it is immersed, so also does the bran of the wheat surrender its minerals to the internal secretions of the body in the same way.

But bran not only furnishes indispensable nutriment to the body, it also acts as a regulator of the peristaltic action of the alimentary tract by which the contents of the intestines are kept moving onward and downward.

One of the curses which white bread imposes upon humanity is constipation. A thousand ills are traceable to this odious food. Patent medicines, the hundreds have been marketed in order to help pill-consumers bridge over the misery which their white bread inflicts upon them.

Constipation is the malevolent origin of the woes of many American women who through chronic constipation set up by inhibited peristalsis are afflicted with uterine and ovarian diseases that make their lives miserable.

Constipation is not the trifling disorder which the public foolishly believes it to be. We are apt to see how grave it really is and to what extent it undermines the health and standing of America. A proper understanding of the significance of constipation will do much to destroy the white bread superstition.

MONROE BOY LANDED AT VERA CRUZ WITH THE UNITED STATES MARINES

Monroe, Wis., March 22.—Ernest A. Rayser, who has just completed a term of enlistment in the United States marine corps, has returned to Monroe and is a guest of his mother, Mrs. Rayser, 205 E. Belmont.

Rayser enlisted Feb. 10, 1915, and was discharged Feb. 24, 1916. He was one of the members of the landing party at Vera Cruz when the American forces took possession of that city on April 22, 1914, remaining there until conditions were improved, then being ordered to Haiti to aid in putting down the revolution there. Mr. Rayser's discharge was his participation in the skirmish at Vera Cruz on April 22, 1914 and was in various engagements in Haiti between Oct. 18 and Nov. 17, 1915.

During his service he was also aboard the United States battleship Washington and Michigan, two of the finest in the American navy. Although well satisfied with the experience which has been his, he announces he will not re-enlist, as he wishes to break out and his services be needed.

HAVE PURE BLOOD

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure, Rich, Red Blood.

Your heart works night and day without pause. It is the principal organ of the circulation of the blood. It is of the utmost importance that it should do its work well. The quality and quantity of your blood have much to do with your health. If this fluid is pure and abundant, your heart and other vital organs act with more energy than when it is defective in quality or deficient in quantity.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure and abundant. It is the one old reliable medicine, that has been sold for forty years, for purifying the blood. There is no better blood remedy, appetizer, stomach tonic. It embodies the careful training, experience, and skill of Mr. Hood, a pharmacist for fifty years, in its quality and power to cure.

United States Balanced Tires

At Last—the 'Balanced' Tire

The greatest forward step ever made in pneumatic tires

On January 8th, in the Saturday Evening Post, we announced that at last we had made pneumatic rubber tires more like other dependable articles of merchandise.

Stop and analyze this statement—"more like other dependable articles of merchandise."

Unless backed up by results, it would be almost commercial suicide for tire manufacturers to make such a statement.

Now we are ready to tell you the reason for this fearless confidence in our

To be 100 per cent. efficient, a tire must be absolutely 'balanced'—that is, the rubber tread and the fabric carcass of the tire must give equal wear.

'Balance' the tire maker's goal

To have perfect 'balance' the rubber tread must have enough resiliency to absorb road shocks that tend to disintegrate the fabric, and still must have the toughness to give long wear.

For much toughness reduces resiliency; too much resiliency sacrifices toughness.

Full, complete tire efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of the rubber tread and the fabric carcass—neither may be stronger nor weaker than the other.

Problem: find the 'balance'.

Full rubber-tread efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of resiliency and toughness.

Full fabric-carcass efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of fabric layers and rubber—a union that makes tire unseparable impossible.

By producing this complete 'balance' between resiliency and toughness in the tread, and between fabric and rubber in the carcass, we have secured a 100 per cent. efficient United States Individualized Tire, or absolute 'balance'.

Since September, sales have increased steadily month by month up to the recent highest increase of 354 per cent.—this tells the story.

By September last, these absolutely 'balanced' United States Tires began to be 'felt' on the market.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hanlon spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Pankhurst in Johnston.

Odd Hair Styles—Some of the New Hebrides people do their hair up in a bunch on the top of the head and stain it yellow, while the inhabitants of the Ombai islands pass it all through a tube, so as to make a kind of plume. The Marquesas chiefs favorite method is to shave all the head except two patches, one over each temple, where he cultivates two horns of hair. No doubt this is to render him more a thing of terror to his enemies than admiration to his friends. His reason for shaving the rest of the head is to allow more space for tattooings, as if all the available skin of the body were not enough for decorative purposes.—London Standard.

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Edited by MRS. ABBIE HELMS

NOW BABY WEEK IS OVER.

Baby week is over. All interested, and the extension of good citizenship, hope that its observance will prove widely beneficial. Certainly many have been stirred to thought about better care of babies, and from thought grows action. The information has been diffused, widespread interest has been awakened in the subject; study has been promoted; practical measures have been suggested; the outcome should be a certain raising of the average of infantile health with a result in better babies and an ultimate achievement of a stronger citizenship, physically, mentally and morally.

BABIES SWAMP THE SHOW.

"We expected 4,200 babies at the better baby show at 10:30 in the morning I would have had there were more than a million infants on the eleventh floor of the Boston Store. We were completely swamped." Harriet Vittum, chairman of the child welfare committee of the Woman's City Club, Chicago, may be rather a high estimate of the number of youngsters present at the show, but nothing but an actual count would tell. The fact that a million was too high. Anyhow, it became evident after the show had been open two hours that the show was impossible to handle. The crowd of mothers and children who were packing the elevators and stairways on the Dearborn street side of the Boston Store.

At 10:30 the elevators stopped running to the eleventh floor and hundreds of mothers, offspring in their arms, stood for hours on the stairways waiting for an opportunity to descend into the place where the earlier arrivals were being examined by a corps of physicians and nurses. It was announced in the afternoon that the final results would not be given out until next week although an effort will be made to announce a few of the "100 per cent infants" today. The score of all registered babies will be mailed to parents as soon as the figures can be compiled.

CENSORSHIP OF THE MOVIES.

I wonder how many of us as we sit before the screen listening to the flow of music and watching the action of the appearance of Mary Pickford or Marguerite Clark or some other favorite, have any definite knowledge of what it means, when with the title of the play the censor's name is mentioned. "Passed by the National Board of Censorship." Just what does this mean? What and when and why and how does this Board censor?

Careful investigation brought to light the following facts:

That the National Board of Censorship is a voluntary, self-governing body working with the manufacturers and importers of motion pictures in the interests of the public. It was organized five years ago by the People's Institute of N. Y., its leading spirits being Dr. Charles Sprague Smith, director of the Institute, and John Collier. No member can be engaged in any branch of the moving picture business. The 23 members of the general committee speak as skilled social workers representing such agencies as the Y. M. C. A., Children's Aid Association, People's Institute, women's clubs, churches and social workers. 105 members of the censoring committee volunteer their services and the actual censoring is done under the direction of W. B. McGuire Jr. of New York City. If the manufacturers submitting a film or the censor's report is not satisfied with a decision, they may appeal to the general committee. Each state has its own committee. The Board at present views 150 to 185 films each week and this covers 95% of the whole industry. Last year 53 subjects were condemned and 100 were eliminated from 401. In the year 1915 $2,910 worth of negatives and copies were kept out of the market in the interest of public morality. Every week the Board issues a bulletin telling what plays have been passed, what ones eliminated, and the reasons why. These bulletins go to over 500 city authorities, social workers, local censoring committees and other interested parties.

It may be interesting to know by what standards these pictures are viewed and what constitutes the basis of such judgment. Few people realize the scope and complexity of such criticism. This Board has many obstacles to overcome and its every other organization are liable to error, but on the whole their methods are sound and are founded on sound ethical principles. If their purpose is as far as possible to keep out of the great experiences of humanity so that these experiences may not be suppressed or lowered. For this reason all unduly violent scenes are excluded and any that are suggestive, dancing that is suggestive or scenes in which the lack of decency clothing makes a sensual appeal are also barred. Many phases of crime with their sordid details, together with ghoulish death scenes, are eliminated. Deeds of violence, except such as are necessary to the dramatic situation have to be very carefully considered. The Board critically examines all films presenting sex lapses which would tend to perpetuate the double standard of morality, which reveal easy ways of gratifying desire or of making money on the trade in human weakness. The Board deals severely with films depicting moral degeneracy and emotions of normal nature and seldom serves a dramatic purpose. Subjects that involve national or race prejudice, religious sects, etc., are also very carefully considered.

In dealing with questionable subjects the Board recognizes that information and definite moral lessons may be driven home with force by means of the motion picture. For this reason they admit such films as show the dangers and effects of moral misconduct, that arouse fear, the minds of the public and develop hatred of the evils. They also pass films which indicate sensible or suppression of crime. It recognizes the need of education as to the right forming habit, but excludes the gruesome or alluring details, or anything that might stimulate curiosity or experimentation. On the other hand, the Board of Censorship is doubtless doing a good work and is attempting to set its judgment an uplifting standard of ethics and morality. This Board is unique and over pictureque from the fact that though it is such a power in the moving picture world and is steadily strengthening its status, and can not legally enforce its decisions. Last year 7000 reels representing 5,700 different subjects and totaling 3,500,000 feet of film was passed upon by this censorship committee. In addition to this the National Board there are both state and local boards. Nearly every large city has its own local board of censorship and each city is governed largely by its own local standards which film manufacturers soon learn to measure and understand. For example, in Chicago where the Child Welfare League is strong and active it is almost impossible to get a film by that is in any way detrimental to the child. While in Pittsburgh where there is a very large foreign population, less attention is paid to the problem of the tendency to race or class prejudice. Both Ohio and Kansas have state laws but neither have been entirely satisfactory.

At present public attention is directed to a bill before the House of Representatives to establish a Federal Motion Picture Commission. It is proposed in this, to create a new division of the Bureau of Education and pay $4000 to run the office for the maintenance. Motion picture people to a man are against the bill and a very strong lobby is working systematically for its defeat. Recently a bill of the kind of film which is being waited upon President Wilson in person to state their side of the case. They have many arguments in their favor and many noted men on their side. The strongest argument is that it is simply a political move with a large salary list and the creation of many fat offices with no more accomplished than is being done by the present picture people make of making a distinction between regulation and censorship. In fact they seem to be in favor of the strictest sort of regulation. Of a law par with indecent, books and other articles; a law that shall make it impossible for indecent films to be sent through the mail or by express and the prosecution of such liable to criminal prosecution.

In summing up this rather general topic of censorship we find that the need of careful supervision is generally conceded and that the consensus of opinion seems to be that there should be more rigorous in the future than it has in the past. But it also becomes apparent that the position of censor is not a simple or easy one. To be fair to all classes, all nationalities, all religious and social activities, to uphold the standards of ethics and morality without becoming narrow or biased by personal prejudice or opinion is a task which is not easily accomplished. It is a work worthy of the time and ability of the cultured minds of our best and wisest citizenship.

PHILOMATHIAN CLUB.

The Reciprocity day program which is an annual event with the Philomathian Club was held on Saturday, March 18, with Mrs. T. O. Rowe as hostess. The tables were beautifully decorated with daffodils and other spring flowers. The delicious menu was enjoyed by nearly the entire membership of the club and an honor member from Beloit, Mrs. Chas. Meyer, was also present. The guests of honor were Mrs. Boardman of Evansville and Mrs. E. W. Fisher of Janesville.

Mrs. Boardman gave a most interesting paper on "Women in the Law." She said that the law had been usually considered a man's work and that there were a smaller number of women practicing law than in any other of the professions. She gave the number of women lawyers in the United States at present as only 1843, while there were over 9000 women physicians and about the same number of preachers and more than 480,000 teachers. In England a woman is not considered a person and has no personal rights, consequently cannot practice law. In France no other than there are many women lawyers and they handle most of the cases concerning women and children. In fact there is a large court, entirely by women, which undertakes to judge these cases without cost. Boston has a large law school, with evening classes which is doing good work in teaching clerks, stenographers and other employees of law firms the requirements of the profession, besides those who intend to make a serious study of it. The University of Wisconsin has graduated 26 women from its law department. One of the graduates, Miss La Pollette, was the first. One Milwaukee lady has had four ladies graduate in this work and Mrs. Ellen Copp of this city graduated in the class of 1908.

There are many women lawyers holding responsible positions as probate judges, justices of the peace, prosecuting attorneys and probation officers. The Woman's Club of Los Angeles investigates every case that comes before it, thoroughly and especially regard to the antecedents and general history of the accused. There was also a band of ladies who were organized to look after discharged cases and co-operate with the courts in efforts toward reformation. Three of these ladies attended every session of the court.

In Chicago there is a Children's Court and Miss Mary Bartelme is one of the judges presiding over its meetings. There is also a woman probation officer connected with the court, which has guardianship over a large number of minor children. There are many similar courts being started in all the larger cities. Mrs. Boardman closed her paper with an eloquent description of Portia, the first woman lawyer.

The paper on the "Tower of London" given by Mrs. Fisher was most complete and comprehensive. She spoke of its having had 800 years of history being begun by William the Conqueror and of its vast area covering 12 or 13 acres. It has had many architects and many but the chief family of royalty having added something to the vast collection of towers, chapels, halls and court rooms. There are also the prison cells and the enormous variety of armaments, saddlery, foreign curios beside the crown jewels of the realm. Many interesting pictures were shown illustrating the different parts of the tower building and the efforts to enliven a social hour and brought to a close a most delightful occasion.

ART LEAGUE.

The regular meeting of this organization was held at the library Friday, March 17, with Mrs. Woods presiding. The delegates to the district federation meeting to be held at Delavan April 25th and 26th were elected as follows: Delegates, Mrs. James Strimble, Helms, Dedrick, Nuzum, and Miss Prichard. The alternates, Misses Cunningham, Taylor, Cunningham and Miss Calkins and Miss Shoppell.

"Let Us Meet and Counsel Together" given by Mrs. Woods who spoke of the French nation, as a being a pleasure loving people and at this time, their buildings lost their beautiful simplicity and became profusely ornate.

She gave the Chateau of Chambord as being an example of the style of the period, with its 440 rooms and its roofs having a series of mansard windows. These kind of windows and roofs are a feature of the era and were first used by the architect Mansart and named after him.

The Bourbon period was given by Mrs. Kimberley who spoke of it as being introduced by the nobility as the construction of their palaces. She spoke of the Louvre as being the first attempt and the best specimen of the Renaissance. She mentioned the extensive rooms and the many beautiful features of its decorations. She described the Luxembourg palace as being composed of a main building and many wings enclosing a court, with the lower story in the form of an arcade.

She named the royal palace at Versailles as being most extensive and wonderful in its architecture. The ornate staircases being badly placed. Mrs. Kimberley also substituted for Mrs. Lane whose topic was the Rococo period. She said that reaction had set in in this era and there was a poverty of invention and a dominance of vulgar display. She described the Tuilleries as one of the royal palaces built for a queen and that it was noted more for its beautiful gardens, than for its architecture.

Notice was given of the Exhibition which was to be held from March 25 to April 1st, at the Art League. The committee in charge of the Exhibition are Mrs. Pember, Mrs. Nuzum, Mrs. Ed. Mrs. Prichard, Miss Shoppell and Miss Harris.

WISCONSIN ARTISTS.

The Art League are planning to hold an exhibition in the city March 29 to April 1st, of the work of Wisconsin artists. In a letter to the Art League, Adolph Schulz says: I am very much interested indeed in the work which the citizens of our state are doing in the art field. We are all trying to do the best we can and welcome any effort to be placed rightly before the public. Mr. Schulz was born in Delavan, Wis., and has lived there except when studying abroad. He has studied at several years mostly in Chicago and western cities. His picture, "Prost and Pog," is in the Art Institute, Chicago.

Ad. Schulz (wife of Adolph) was born in Terre Haute, Indiana, studied at the Art Institute, Chicago, and has always cared more for figure painting than other things of work. Her studies of children have been especially successful and after the birth of her son she has devoted herself largely to portraying motherhood. As she says, "It is the highest subject that can be expressed by art."

Richard Lorenz, though born in Germany, lived in Milwaukee and was associated with much of the artistic life of that city. He painted horses, cattle, cowboys and Indians with admirable qualities of color and sentiment. He was particularly fond of farm teams and loved to paint them going or returning from work. He has pictures in the Layton Art gallery and many other collections. He died in the summer of 1915.

GREEN BAY HAS MODEL CITY COMFORT STATION

Claiming to have something quite new in civic improvement, Green Bay people show a large one story building which they have called the "Brown County Woman's Building."

Men are also allowed the buildings privileges. The building is intended for a rest room for out of town shoppers. Tables, couches, easy chairs, magazines, writing material, etc., are in fact every convenience sought by the woman away from home, is provided. Rooms for committee meetings and for lodge or mass meetings are also provided.

THE DRAMA LEAGUE.

This organization held its regular meeting on Monday evening at the city hall. There was a large attendance and the club voted to endorse the club room, rest room proposition if it was carried out. The study program took up the first act of Galsworthy's play "The Mob" and it was read and discussed thoroughly. The next of the play will be taken up at a later meeting.

FROM AN OUT OF TOWN CLUB WOMAN

Letters received from Mrs. C. Childs who is wintering in Long Beach, California, show that she is enjoying the climate and meeting many Wisconsin people. She says: We are having fine weather here and the flowers are getting more beautiful every day. I walked two miles one day recent in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bains called and took us out driving. I am going out to Universal city again soon as I want to see more of the film work and it is so pretty at Hollywood. We have enjoyed the first of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bains called and took us out driving. SCRAP IRON PRICE CONTINUES HIGHER THAN IN THE PAST

S. W. Rotstein and Company Make Another Large Sale to Manufacturing Concerns.

Scrap iron continues to soar in price and along with this increase comes increased prices for rags and old papers. Shortage of supplies in the latter are seriously handicapping paper manufacturers and they are eagerly scouring the country for supplies. The S. W. Rotstein company of this city has been paying largely increased prices for rags and papers by the hundred pound lots and has thus far been unable to keep up with the demand. In the Janesville yards of the company they have at present some thirty thousand pounds of copper, the price for which has been on the steady increase since the present European war started. During the past week they have also purchased some fifteen hundred tons of scrap iron and have sold at good sized prices some two thousand tons that will be made up into shrapnel and other material by the large iron concerns that are anxious for all the material they can obtain. Al Rotstein of the Rotstein firm has recently returned from a two weeks' trip on the road and stated last evening that his firm was considering the advisability of opening a branch yard in Chicago to handle transshipments that they were buying all over the country.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Saw the splendid article on speeders in your last night's issue; it was good and the chief is right, but now that spring and summer is to arrive why not let the speeders go? The windows in homes will be open and screens put on very soon and the clamor and song of those fine bakery and cream vans will soon be about. Perhaps you have heard them. Pity the sick man who will have to listen to it for the heavy artillery is of no comparison. Pity the tired mother who just rocked her babe to sleep. Pity the man who works at night and sleeps by day for it surely must be sweet music to him. Pity the man who makes such noise for he deserves the iron cross. Why not curb it and curb it now for to a stranger it would be hard to distinguish the difference between the approach of a fire truck and a bakery or ice cream van. It is only when you hear this sweet music in spring time, if so speak, that you know it is a fire truck.

Yours truly,
Lawrence C. Page.
